

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to the field of printing and bound printed matter such as books, calendars, catalogs, and magazines. The invention provides printed matter bound printed matter and calendars on which are printed interlaced images, decoders for individually viewing the basic images of which the interlaced images are comprised, and methods based on lenticular technology of illustrating printed matter with changing displays.